Great Book!!!

By Sheena Lofton

Career changes and job searches often lead to some very interesting paths. The natural instinct is to take the path of least resistance; cross where it makes sense, essentially jaywalk, and not detour. Yet, sometimes, the detour is necessary in order to get to where you want to go safely.

The average person will have 4 different careers during their working lifetime. When you need to make a career change, it's necessary to find that crosswalk. The important thing to remember about a crosswalk, is that it's not a place to linger. It requires action and a first step. It's also, safe.

Taking that first step can still be risky. We can't always rely on the fact that other drivers are paying attention. Traffic is still moving around, even though there's a green light indicating safe crossing. But what is life without an element of risk? What is a career without taking a chance every now and then and seeing what can happen?

As you're standing at your career crosswalk, what are you thinking? Does making a major career move seem too risky? Does sacrificing what you know currently as "good" remotely compare to Jesus removing himself from His Heavenly glory and suffering and dying for you? Does the decision you have to make on a principle of faith include an element of risk that endangers your life or that of your family?

Realistically, what kind of sacrifice or risk do you have to take when you place your hope, faith, and trust in the Lord? God will lead you to a crosswalk where you can move safely. The green "walk" sign will flash, and even if traffic is moving about you, you can trust that God will deliver you to your destination safely. God DOES PROVIDE; there's no need to doubt that fact. God needs YOU to trust, focus upon His green arrow, approach HIS crosswalk, and take that step.

God's crosswalk could take on many different forms, shapes, sizes, and directions. His crosswalk may have some turns in it. It may not always be an exact straight path. In order to recognize God's designated crosswalk you must look at it with your faith lenses on. It's probably not going to look like the crosswalks we see everyday. It might not even make sense. Remember, we can't fathom God's wisdom...our minds are limited.

Carefully consider the choices before you today and contemplate your next career move. Put God first, approach His crosswalk, and know that He will safely lead you to a place of blessing and peace.

Read, Plan and Succeed!

By Misty Leask

I am a planner, and love to know how, when, where and what it is going to take to get me to my goal. Since one of my goals for 2014 is to become a VA, I was thrilled to read Alyssa's book. Inside it's pages I found everything I need to help realistically plan and complete my goals for becoming a VA in 2014.

Each chapter is filled with Alyssa's personal knowledge of what it took to get where she is, and what she would recommend you NOT do in your journey to becoming a VA. I love when author's take the time to be real and honest in their writing.

The links to additional training and blog posts relevant to each chapters topic are wonderful assets as well! Alyssa's heart for teaching and training up and coming VA's is apparent throughout this short eBook. I am looking forward to poking around her videos, classes and website more!

I am also very excited to sit down and really map out what my niche is and know that I have the choice to decide what I do want to do as a VA, and what I DON'T want to do.

I highly recommend Alyssa's book to anyone who loves to plan for their VA goals and see them come to fruition!
