About the Author

Tom Léger and Riley MacLeod have been writing together and fostering space for transgender artists for over 10 years. Their plays have been seen at HERE Arts Center, WOW Cafe Theater, Clemente Soto Velez Cultural Center, and included 9 sold-out episodes of their serial comedy Butch McCloud: Your Friendly Neighborhood Lesbian Superhero which delighted audiences in New York for more than a year. Léger and MacLeod wrote the screenplay for the celebrated short film F. Scott Fitzgerald Slept Here (2007, dir. Jules Roskam) which EMRO noted was "surprisingly blunt and humorous" and also "quite amazing". The two also co-produced STAGES, the first international transgender theater festival, in New York City in 2003. THE COLLECTION is their first book project.

High quality writing, long overdue anthology

By Danikaellis

The Collection does something that hasn't really been done before: an anthology of literary short stories with transgender main characters. The quality of writing is really high for any anthology, and there is a good mix of men, women, and non-binary people featured. There are also lots of gay/lesbian/bisexual/queer trans characters included. Overall this collection is not only incredibly necessary, given the lack of trans representation in literature, it also very well written and balanced. I look forward to more from these editors and Topside Press. Full review is at The Lesbary.

Fantastic New Voices

By Dana Goldstein

Imaginative, emotional, and dynamic, this collection of short stories runs you through a huge number of diverse new queer fiction authors, with stories as varied and fascinating as their writers.
