About the Author

Iacopo Bruno once had a very special friend who had everything he could possibly want. You see, ever since the two of them were kids, Bruno's friend owned a magical pencil with two perfectly sharp ends. Whenever he wanted something, he drew it and it came to life! Once, he drew a spaceship and the both boarded it and went on a nice little tour around the galaxy. Another time, he drew a sparkling red plane that was very similar to the Red Baron's, only a little smaller. He piloted the two of them inside a giant volcano that had erupted only an hour earlier. Whenever Bruno's friend was tired, he drew a big bed. They dreamed through the night until the morning light shone through the drawn shades. This great friend of his eventually moved to China . . . but he left his magic pencil with Bruno!

A great book!

By Dad of Divas

Another great Sherlock Holmes story that will grab your attention. Best of all was the group of characters that the author has put together and kept together through these books. The book had a number of twists and turns and with that in mind you will stay having fun from beginning to end. Whether you have read other books from the series or not this was a fun read for all!

By AMM

My daughter is 10 years old. She loved the first book and thought the second in the series was terrible. I don't even think she finished reading it.
